GOING TO

Uses:

There are three Basic rules of the going to - future:

- To talk about planned actions where the decision has been made before speaking.
- To express intentions. (We often use going to rather than will in informal style)
- To make a prediction where there is some evidence now.

A) Read the text:

The seaside

Mrs. Adams is putting some luggage in their car boot.

They are going to the seaside for their holidays.

Father: Well, Sheila, what are you going to do?

Tom: I'm going to dive everyday. I've got my snorkel, my waterproof camera, my goggles and my flippers. And I'm going to water-skiing too.

Father: I'm speaking to Sheila, Tom. What are going to do Sheila?

Sheila: I'm not going to dive. I'm going to build sandcastles and I'm also going to pick up shells and pebbles. In the afternoons I'm going to paint them and sell them. Then I will have money to buy ice-creams.

What are you going to do mum?

Mother: I'm going to sunbath. I'm going to seat on a deckchair and read. I'm also going to walk barefoot among seaweed covered rocks.

And I'm going to take some pictures, too. But, I think I forgotten to bring rolls of film.

Tom: I also need rolls. I want to take pictures of the crabs.

Father: Don't worry. Sheila is going to pay for the new rolls with all the money she is going to earn by selling shells and pebbles. Are you going to earn enough money, Sheila?

Sheila: Of course.
